

Kate Huckelbridge

Kate Huckelbridge is a Senior Environmental Scientist at the California Coastal Commission. She received her masters and PhD in environmental engineering from University of California, Berkeley. She has served on the Coastal Commission's staff since 2009 as part of the Energy, Ocean Resources and Federal Consistency Unit where she serves a regulatory and technical lead on renewable energy, oil and gas, wetlands ecology, habitat restoration and management, wetland mitigation policy and banking, water quality, and incorporating sea level rise and other climate change impacts into habitat restoration planning.